

EERA: Building an Educational Research Association

Sometimes it is difficult to take the first step, that is to establish a national association. EERA wants to offer assistance to that process.

In order to help groups of educational research to establish national associations, we have formed a programme that will be offered to groups of educational researchers:

1. Two EERA Council members can run a 1 to 2 day workshop in the country giving information about how national associations are established and run (structure, constitution, membership, congresses etc.) and about becoming and being a member of EERA.
2. EERA will pay the traveling and hotel costs for sending representatives to the workshop and for running the workshop (venue and food).
3. Groups of researchers who wish to join this programme can apply to the Council by contacting the President of EERA.
4. The EERA Council decides every year on 1 to 2 programmes and appoints Council representatives to conduct the workshops.
