Programme Planning: Can I influence the scheduling of my presentation?

We ask all authors to be available for presentation at any time of the conference, including both the first and last sessions. However should you have an unavoidable time restraint, we can try to take this into consideration when allocating time slots. This is only possible in the first phase of programme planning, so please inform us asap. Please note that we may not be able to accommodate all requests.

The programme planners of each network try to group submissions with similar topics into a session. Please note that requests of authors to replace their presentation to a different session which they would find more suitable cannot be considered.

Conference Details

When do I need to hand in a full paper?

We don't need full papers, but presenters should provide the chair with the full paper. Handouts for the audience should also be available.

Please note that ECER does not publish conference proceedings.

What is included in the conference fee?

The fee includes the conference itself, social events for delegates and coffee/tea and small snacks during the coffee breaks. The fee also entitles delegates to free access to the EERJ for one year. Neither lunch nor accommodation are included.

Do I need to inform EERA about special diets?

As we don't offer lunch or dinner to the ECER participants, we don't need to be informed about special diets.

Where do I get my invoice/confirmation of participation from?

You have access to your invoice, receipt and certificate of participation via your user account. The certificate of participation is only available after the beginning of the conference, and only for participants who are registered as having attended the conference. If you need an original signature and stamp on it, please print out a copy and bring it to the EERA desk at the venue.
